This stalwart landmark was finally destroyed by fire during the 1940s.

John and Agnes Turner had a large family, seven sons and four daughters. William, Robert, Agnes Levi, Meroni, Margaret, John M., James L., Mary L., Joseph C., and Jesse.

John Turner died April 19, 1920. Agnes Turner died October 14, 1927. She was a member of the first DLP camp in Heber and a member of the Joseph McNeil camp when it was divided.

WILLIAM L. TURNER

William L. Turner was born to John and Agnes Montgomery Turner on July 31, 1866, at Heber, Utah.

He had been connected with various business interests of the city in the lumber business with his father and brothers, furnishing much of the timber used in the Park City mines, and built and operated an amusement and dance hall.

His father owned a general drygoods store at Main and Second North, and William served there.

He was a bookkeeper and later manager of A. Hatch & Co. co-op store. He also served as a director and cashier of the Bank of Heber City several years.

Mr. Turner was interested in farming and cattle raising.

JANE HATCH TURNER

Emma Jane Hatch was born to Abram and Fernelia Lott Hatch on February 6, 1869, at Heber, Utah.

She received her education in Heber City schools and had a year at the University of Deseret in Salt Lake City, Utah.

On January 1, 1890, she married William L. Turner and to them seven children were born: Lacey T., Dannenberg, Abram W., Turner, Florence T., Balaska, Ruth T., Smith, Joseph Turner, Jesse T., Metmore and Darlow Hill Turner.

Mrs. Turner was prominently identified with business and civic affairs throughout the state, holding various offices in the state Republican organizations many years. She had been president and manager of Heber Mills 10 years.

One of the organizers of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers in Wasatch County, she was the first president of the camp, serving several years. She was well known as a writer and public speaker and many poems and articles by her have been published.
